

Welcome!

For over 20 years the Idaho Children's Trust Fund has supported child abuse prevention efforts across our state; educating and supporting parents and strengthening families to prevent abuse from ever happening in the first place. The ICTF is proud to present our 7th Annual Conference, designed to increase your awareness of the devastating consequences of child abuse, offer knowledge, resources, and tools for the prevention of child abuse, encourage and strengthen partnerships that help to prevent child abuse, and teach about ways to strengthen and support families.

We hope you have an opportunity to attend interesting and relevant workshops, meet new people working to keep children safe, visit with old friends from around our state who care about kids like you do, and bring home knowledge and information that you can use in your community to prevent child abuse and neglect.

If we all do our part, child abuse can be prevented.

Nurturing Parenting: A Proven Approach to Preventing the Maltreatment of Children, Stephen Bavolek, PhD

Nurturing comes form the Latin word "nu tra tura" which means to nourish; to nurse; to promote the growth of. It is the single most important action for the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Nurturing Parenting is a proven approach to help children, parents and families to live in love and compassion. No fancy gimmicks; no magical techniques. Come learn about a philosophy and a program being utilized worldwide to raise healthy and caring families.

Creator of the Nurturing Parenting Programs®

Friday, April 7 Child Safety: Advice From Child Molesters, Cory Jewell Jensen, MS

If you ask the right questions, child molesters will tell you that victimizing children is "simple." Some will tell you that adults are "just as easy to fool" and that the lack of public education about sex offenders "helps us get away with it." As professionals, we know that the traditional child sex abuse prevention programs haven't adequately reduced the rate of sexual crimes against children and some people suggest that "Stranger Danger," "No, Go, Tell" and "Good Touch, Bad Touch" might even have a negative impact because they put all the burden for safety on children. We think it's time to place the responsibility where it belongs, on adults. Until we do, our children will continue to be unsafe in our homes, neighborhoods, youth programs and churches.

Oregon's campaign to challenge the status quo is one we'd like you to consider, after all, what could be more compelling than taking "Advice From Child Molesters."

Keynote Presentations

Session I Workshops, Thursday II:00 - 12:30 IA—Assessing High Risk Parenting Practices, Stephen Bavolek, PhD

The Adult-Adolescent Parenting Inventory is a norm referenced, valid inventory designed to assess attitudes about raising children. Responses provide an index of risk for maltreating children. This workshop will address the practical use of the inventory as an assessment and evaluation tool in providing effective parenting education for the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect.

IB—Circle of Security: Shifting the Patterns of Attachment, Bert Powell, MA

The Circle of Security Project is an internationally acclaimed intervention protocol designed to support secure attachment of children to their caretaker in high-risk populations. The objectives of the seminar will be to offer a comprehensive and user-friendly overview of attachment theory and its clinical implications. Particular attention will be given to the essential features of both healthy and unhealthy attachment and a description of interventions used to treat disturbances of attachment.

Medical professionals, mental health practitioners, educators, clergy, social workers, lawyers, parents, foster parents, and other child service professionals can benefit from such a view by harnessing the fundamental interpersonal processes that promote emotional well-being and mental health across the life span.

IC—Access and Visitation Programs: Helping to Alleviate Child Abuse, Melody Smit, MS

Workshop participants will learn what access and visitation programs are designed to do, how they serve the needs of children, how they can impact both the custodial and non-custodial parent, and the specific features of Project DOVE's KidSafe program. As a result of the workshop, participants will be able to identify facets of successful access and visitation programs, list the benefits of these programs for both adults and children, understand how these programs reduce children's exposure to abuse, and conduct research on finding funding for programs.

ID—Meth and Drug Awareness, Don Van Cleave, Captain

This workshop focuses on Methamphetamine as the primary illegal drug of concern as it affects people physically, mentally and socially. Use of meth is destructive to users and their families, as well as to our communities, our state and our country. Meth abuse has financial implications for taxpayers as well as social service agencies, law enforcement, the judicial system and corrections. Discussion will include the dangers of meth labs, and the differences between meth labs and meth importation and distribution. Participants will learn about child endangerment issues with meth using parents. This is an extremely informative presentation that will have a lasting effect on all those who attend.

Session 2 Workshops, Thursday 1:30 - 3:00

2A—Teaching Men Nurturing Skills, Mark Perlman, MA

Every child deserves to have the presence of a nurturing, involved father in his/her life. The Nurturing Father's Program is a 13-week, group based, proven effective curriculum that teaches men the skills and attitudes for male nurturance. Join the author to learn how and why this program has helped men from all walks of life to open their hearts and minds to their children.

2C—Internet Crimes Against Children, Shellie Strolberg, Detective

A detective from the Ada County Sheriff's Office will discuss on-line child sexual abuse predators in a two-part workshop. Topics will include how offenders find their victims, types of offenders, and children that may be victimized.

2D—Treatment and Recovery: Repair the Damage Done, Joan Sheehan, LCPC, CCS, LMFT

Addicted people lack self-awareness of how their behavior affects others, including their immediate family. Although they may have a strong desire to do the right thing in their parenting and care for others, the symptoms of their addiction prevent them from carrying out healthy relationships. The focus of this presentation will be how treatment interventions repair the damage done by addiction. Included will be an overview of best and model practice treatment approaches. Particular attention will be placed on treating addiction to methamphetamine.

Session 3 Workshops, Thursday 3:30 - 5:00

3A—The 10 Most Important Things for Being a Great Dad, Mark Perlman, MA

What are the most essential things a father can do to not only succeed, but excel in his most important role? In this highly participatory and enjoyable workshop, the author will collaborate with participants to define and discuss the 10 most important things for being a great dad. The author will reference tools from the Nurturing Father's Program and from his 35 years of being a dad and working with fathers, and combine these with the wealth of experience represented in the audience, to see what matters most to us.

3D—A Mother's Story: Recovering from Meth Addiction, Pam Scalise

A mom with five years of sobriety tells her story of meth addiction, treatment, relapse, pain, abuse, and struggle before successfully learning how to get and stay sober. She will discuss the effects of her addiction on her children, and how they ultimately helped her to become the mom she always wanted to be.

The second part of this workshop will be a Question & Answer opportunity with Capt. Van Cleave of the Idaho State Police, Joan Sheehan, treatment specialist, and Pam Scalise, recovering mother.

Session 4 Workshops, Friday 11:00 - 12:30

4A—Selection, Engagement and Seduction of Children and Adults by Child Molesters: Understanding the Impact on Victims and our Community, Cory Jewell Jensen, MS

During this presentation, participants will examine the etiological and operational aspects of child molestation. Participants will study (via multiple videotaped interviews with convicted child molesters) some of the specific strategies offenders use to seduce and manipulate child victims and adults.

4B—Developing and Sustaining Child Abuse Prevention Programs in Tough Times, Suzanne Greenberg

Child abuse and neglect prevention programs are under increasing pressure to demonstrate how they are meeting community needs and improving outcomes for children and families. This interactive, upbeat workshop will describe strategies and resources to assist in building the capacity of community-based organizations. The workshop will describe real life examples of effective strategies for collaborating in local communities, using costbenefit research to highlight the importance of prevention, applying/providing social marketing techniques to child abuse prevention, evaluating prevention programs, and identifying creative and collaborative funding strategies. This high-energy workshop promises to provide positive ways to develop and sustain child abuse prevention programs!

4C—Outcomes and Logic Models: Making them Simple, Understandable and Effective, Margaret Hower

Funders today want to know what difference your services are making in the lives of your participants, and how are you measuring these results. Logic models and outcome accountability are your tools to develop and gather this information, and to give you a road map for success. This information then becomes the foundation of telling your story in a way that makes funders want to support you. Learn what a logic model is, how to write solid outcome statements, develop tools to measure results, then put it all together to tell your story and success in a fun, exciting way.

4D—Nurse-Family Partnership: A Model Preventive Intervention for Young Families, Peggy Hill, MS

Participants in this session will learn about the Nurse-Family Partnership as a model preventive intervention for vulnerable first-time mothers and their children. In this program, nurses conduct home visits beginning early in pregnancy through the first child's second birthday. The program's goals are to improve the mother's health during pregnancy, improve child health and development, and assist the family toward economic self-sufficiency. Carefully conducted scientific studies showed that the program achieved remarkable reductions in child abuse, childhood injuries, involvement in the criminal justice system, and family economic instability. As a result, the program saves $2-$4 in public funds for every $1 invested in its operation. Over the past nine years, a team of people at the program's national office in Denver have assisted community leaders in 20 states to develop the program. The Nurse-Family Partnership is serving over 20,000 families nationally, and continues to partner with state and local leaders to expand its reach. Workshop participants will learn what community strengths lead to success in conducting the program, and how the Nurse-Family Partnership National Office can help you get started.

Session 5 Workshops, Friday 2:00 - 3:30

5A—How Oregon is Implementing "Advice From Child Molesters" in Our Communities, Cory Jewell Jensen, MS

Created by Oregon's oldest and largest sex offender treatment program (Center for Behavioral Intervention), the project was designed to decrease child sex abuse by expanding prevention efforts to include "Advice From (CONTINUED ON PAGE 5)

He has conducted over 1,500 workshops, has appeared on more than 70 radio and television talk show programs and has published numerous books, articles, programs and newsletters. Dr. Bavolek is President of Family Development Resources, Inc. and Executive Director of The Family Nurturing Centers, International.

Jane Freund is a writer, speaker, and communication coach. In addition, she is in her eighth year of teaching Communication at Boise State University. Also, Freund consults with nonprofit organizations on various aspects of their operations. For 25 years, she has served on boards and committees for a variety of nonprofit organizations. Freund has experience working as a nonprofit staff person as well. Freund graduated from Boise State University and was student body president at the University of Idaho.

Suzanne Greenberg has been the President/CEO of the Child Abuse and Neglect (CAN) Council of Saginaw County, Michigan for 10 years. She has over 25 years of public speaking experience in the area of child abuse and neglect and substance abuse issues. She received a BA in Communications from John Carroll University in Cleveland, Ohio. In addition, her minors included Accounting with a concentration in Addictions. Her wealth of experience and education enable her to speak on topics ranging from Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention to parenting and stress management. Suzanne's energetic style and personal experiences truly inspire audiences and have proven to be a critical component of the impact prevention programming has in her county.

Peggy Hill, MS is a Site Developer for the National Office of the Nurse-Family Partnership, based in Denver, Colorado. She has 20 years of experience establishing and managing community-based programs to prevent child abuse and encourage healthy child and family development. She was instrumental in laying the groundwork for early national replication of the Nurse-Family Partnership, assuring that new program sites had the resources and support needed to develop the program successfully. Earlier in her career, she led statewide advocacy and education efforts on behalf of children at risk for child abuse and neglect, and helped develop a state plan for the prevention of child abuse in New Hampshire. She earned a masters degree in counseling from Purdue University with a focus on social change and community systems related to the prevention of child abuse and neglect. In her current position with the Nurse-Family Partnership, she works in partnership with states and cities to establish this nationally-acclaimed early preventive intervention for vulnerable young families.

Margaret Hower, Grants Manager for Idaho Children's Trust Fund, has been successful at creating and sustaining business ventures, public programs and non-profit services. She is a trained facilitator for The Finance Project's Sustainability Planning Process. Margaret actually enjoys working with outcomes, logic models and sustainability! Her explanations are easy to understand, and her excitement is contagious.

Gory Jewell Jensen, MS is the Co-Director of the Center for Behavioral Intervention in Beaverton, Oregon. Ms. Jensen has worked with adult sex offenders and their families for over 20 years and provided training and/or consultation to The National Center for the Prosecution of Child Abuse, The United States Navy, The Mark McGwire Children's Foundation, The Association for the Treatment of Sexual Abusers (ATSA) and a number of local and national law enforcement and child advocacy organizations in numerous states, Canada and Puerto Rico.

From 1992 to 1993, Ms. Jensen served as the Executive Director of ATSA. She is the immediate Past President of the Oregon Chapter of ATSA and a current member of the Offender Response Committee attached to the Oregon Attorney General's Sexual Assault Task Force. In 2003, Ms. Jensen received the "Commercial Crime Prevention Award" from the Crime Prevention Association of Oregon and was honored by the Clackamas County MDT for her community prevention efforts. Ms. Jensen has also published a number of articles on the evaluation and treatment of sex offenders, testified as an expert witness in local and federal courts and been a featured guest on the Oprah Winfrey Show.

Mark Perlman, MA has worked professionally with parents, children, and families for over 35 years. He has served as President/CEO of the Family Counseling Center and Executive Director of the Protection Center in Sarasota, Florida. He is the author of The Nurturing Father's Program and A Nurturing Father's Journal. His newest curriculum, entitled The Marriage and Parenting Program, was published in 2004. Mark is a Florida Supreme Court certified Family Mediator. He served on the Florida Commission on Responsible Fatherhood for three years, and currently serves on the Commission on Marriage and Family Support Initiatives. Mark is married to Kate McPhillips and they have two grown sons, Jaime and Corey.

Bert Powell, MA along with his colleagues Kent Hoffman and Glen Cooper, founded the Circle of Security Project at Marycliff Institute in Spokane, Washington. For the past 30 years they have sought to synthesize work in developmental psychopathology, affective neuroscience, object relations theory, family therapy, and attachment theory within an intervention model designed to positively impact infants and young children, especially within the context of at-risk families.

The Circle of Security Project has been presented to clinicians and researchers around the world and received the 2000 Washington State Governor's Child Abuse Prevention Award by Governor Gary Locke and The Washington Council for Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' office on Child Abuse and Neglect (OCAN) appeared that Circle of Services' office on Child Abuse and Neglect (OCAN) announced that Circle of Security has been accepted in the category of Reported Effective Programs.

Bert has a master's degree from Whitworth College in behavioral science and has been practicing as psychotherapist since 1974. He is also an Approved Supervisor in the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy, an Adjunct Assistant Professor in the Graduate School of Counseling Psychology at Gonzaga University and an International Advisor to the Editorial Board of the Journal of Attachment and Human Development.

Pamela Scalise is a single mom of two children, a 15-year-old daughter and a five-year-old son. She works as a certified dental assistant in Redmond, Oregon, where she makes her home. She enjoys hiking in Smith Rocks, painting, going to the movies, and spending time with her children. Pam has close to five years of sobriety after battling a meth addiction that almost cost her custody of her children. Pam states, "My life is an absolute miracle; I'm very grateful for where I've been, and where I'm headed. Today I am self sufficient for the first time in my life. My family and I are blessed."

Joan Marie Sheehan, LGPG, GGS, LMFT is a graduate of St. Mary's College, Minneapolis, Minnesota campus, where she received her Masters Degree in Counseling and Psychological Services in 1986. After arriving in Boise, Idaho, she completed licensing as a professional counselor, certified addictions supervisor, and marriage and family therapist. Her 30 years experience in the helping professions is the foundation for her skill in crafting training, programming, and supervision for addictions professionals and the agencies they serve.

For the 33rd Annual Summer Addictions program at the University of San Diego, La Jolla campus Joan presented "As Good As It Gets: Treatment for Early Onset Long-Term Methamphetamine Addicts and their Families." Joan currently serves her community by providing Clinical Supervision Consulting for individuals and agencies, in addition to program management for Road to Recovery Outpatient Services in Boise, Idaho. She is a member of the ICADD Foundation and Planning Committee.

Melody A. Smit, MS began her career as a health educator with a specialty in sex education after graduating from the University of Central Arkansas with a master's degree in health education. She taught in the same field for the next nine years at the university level incorporating healthy relationships, sexual health, domestic and sexual violence and relationship building in her basic and advanced class curriculum. Melody moved back to Malheur County, Oregon in the fall of 2004 and was pleased to be awarded the position of Youth Education and Outreach Coordinator for Project DOVE soon after. Since she started with DOVE, Melody has also served as the Sexual Assault Response Team advocate and was promoted to Executive Director in August of 2005. Melody missed the western sky while living in other states and takes every opportunity to be outdoors with her golden retriever and cat. She enjoys travel, good food, wine, and people who strive to make a positive difference.

Detective Shellie Strolberg has been with the Ada County Sheriff's Office since 1995. She is currently a detective in the Major Crimes Unit where she specializes in investigating felony crimes against people, including rape, robbery, and homicide. The bulk of the cases she investigates are child sexual abuse.

Shellie is a member of Idaho ICAC (Internet Crimes Against Children). ICAC is a multijurisdiction task force including members from the Ada County Sheriff's Office, Boise Police Department, Canyon County Sheriff's Office, and The Federal Bureau of Investigation. ICAC conducts investigations regarding child sexual abuse wherein the Internet is involved.

Shellie works as a member of CITF (Critical Incident Task Force) that investigates critical incidents that local police officers are involved in. She is also a member of the Ada County Sheriff's Office Crisis Negotiation Team (CNT). CNT members work with barricaded subjects or hostage takers to negotiate the safe release of hostages and/or surrender of the offender.

Captain Don Van Gleave is captain of the Investigative Division of the Idaho State Police.

Capt. Van Cleave has approximately 27 years of law enforcement experience in Idaho with 21 of those specializing in Narcotics Investigations.

Child Molesters" workshops for parent groups, educators, youth serving organizations, the faith community and the general public at large. Workshops are taught by multi-disciplinary teams and focus on increasing reporting by community members, improving community support for victims and hopefully, reducing the number of sex offenders in future generations by sensitizing parents and other adults to some of the developmental paths involved in offending.

5B—Communication Strategies for Non-Profits, | Jane Freund

In a world where information is everywhere, how can a nonprofit organization catch people's attention? When should an organization be proactive versus reactive? What are the best methods for getting the media to publicize your organization's activities? This workshop will show participants how to think strategically about communicating your nonprofit's message and activities.

5C—Sustainability Planning: Developing a Concrete, Realistic Map to Solidify Your Organization's Future, Margaret Hower

A written sustainability plan will provide overarching guidance for your organization over time. The process to be covered was developed by The Finance Project, a non-profit research, consulting, technical assistance and training firm helping organization leaders finance and sustain initiatives that lead to better futures for children, families and communities. Learn the key elements of sustainability, who to involve, how to gather the information you need and how to find additional resources for your work.
